BIOGRAPHY

Carmine Battista joined the FCB network as global chief financial officer in January 2020, following the retirement of former Global CFO and COO Neil Miller. Battista specializes in strategic finance for FCB's global network and leads his team by infusing it with his core values of honesty, transparency and giving everyone at the table a voice.

Battista joins FCB from IPG's McCann Worldgroup, where he served as North American Chief Financial Officer and worked directly with global leadership on growth, profitability, planning and strategy. Prior to McCann, Battista worked with Fortress Investment Group, Interpublic Group and Price Waterhouse, where he guided media and entertainment industry clients.

Battista studied accounting and information systems at CUNY Queens College and was recruited to work at the accounting firm Arthur Andersen directly out of college.
